

About us...

The San Francisco Marriott Marquis is a 39-story skyscraper with 1,500 guest rooms in the South of Market. It stands at 436 feet in height (133 m) and is one of the tallest hotels in San Francisco.

The late local newspaper columnist Herb Caen once compared the shape of the building to that of a "Jukebox." Hence, the nickname for the San Francisco Marriott Marquis was established.

October 17, 1989, was the hotel's "Grand Opening," and it was Game 3 of Major League Baseball's World Series (Oakland Athletics vs. San Francisco Giants). At 5:04pm PST, a 6.9 magnitude earthquake struck the San Francisco Bay Area causing significant damage throughout.

On the 39th floor of the hotel's lounge known as "The View," all the liquor bottles and glassware shattered with the exception of one martini glass. Today, the lone martini glass is showcased above the bar.

"The View" is one of the city's iconic lounges and is the ideal destination for business and leisure guests to enjoy hand crafted cocktails and locally inspired small plates. Sit back, relax, and take in the awe-inspiring views the city has to offer.
